If Germany Goes Bolshevist
Telephone Word-Scrambling
The President "Envisions"
Re-Enter Dr. Einstein

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

BEARS IN Wall Street enjoyed themselves yesterday and the public learned about the importance of Germany's stability, even here in our stock gambling.

A rumor of revolution in Berlin was spread and refused to die. German reparations bonds dropped sharply. American stocks fell off from one to eight points.

The world's best minds," in this country particularly, will realize that the Versailles treaty, imposing on Germany brutal, financial slavery, was not as wise as it looked in the beginning.

Those that said, "Let the Germans pay, they lost," would not be so cheerful if they saw Germany driven into bolshevism.

Germany and Russia, both bolshevistic on the east, would make financial Europe on the west tremble for good reasons.

THE DUTCH Telephone company between The Hague and the Dutch East Indies tries experiments in "scrambled" conversation.

That news will interest Mrs. Ruth McCormick, who says a senate committee tapped her wire. It wouldn't do any good to tap the new telephone system in question.

The sending instrument transforms words into an entirely unintelligible jargon, while the instrument connected with the ear of the receiver puts them back into plain language.

The illegal listener-in would hear, for instance, this jumble—"Trupjisnobkansep"—and the legitimate listener would get the message—"Jones is bankrupt." Each word of the real message appears as "trupjisnobkansep."

MR. GILBERT, who knows sometimes what goes on in Washington, says President Hoover, awaiting a report by his dry law commission, "Won't countenance repeal, but envisions modification." The fact that he doesn't countenance repeal makes no difference, for it would be impossible to repeal the amendment. Seventeen states can prevent it, and more than seventeen are "dry forever."

The use of the word "envisions" is something of which President Hoover was not guilty, needless to say.

Our crime wave is bad enough, without butchering the English language.

It would be interesting to know just what kind of modification the President "envisions," also what his "reaction" is on the "mass psychology" produced by wholesale and retail bootlegging, murder racketeering, and all-round deviltry.

MR. EINSTEIN reappears on the front page to tell you that space is "only a theory representing a nonreality." Perhaps he never bumped his head in the dark and hit the door when space suddenly came to an end.

He sends the Prussian Academy of Science a new treatise on the theory of space conception, with Riemann metrics and extended parallelism."

You must concentrate a little when you read that. Professor Einstein says: "Maybe people will think I am a fool when they read this. They will not, and, on the other hand, they need not blame themselves for not understanding it."

COMMISSION THROUGH WITH RATE BATTLE

State Utilities Body Says Controversy Now Up to State Tribunal.

ANSWERS COUNCIL QUERY

Valuation of Leaseholds Is Final Question To Be Decided in 5-Year Fight.

The Logan Gas Co. rate fight, the settlement of which is expected to have a direct bearing on the possible settlement of a franchise and rate ordinance with the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. here, successor of the Logan company, is beyond jurisdiction of the public utilities commission, according to members of the commission in a letter to City Clerk Sylvester Larkin today.

Clerk Larkin asked the commissioners explained in a reply that the case has passed the hands of the commission and is now with the state supreme court.

The question before the supreme court is whether valuations placed on leaseholds of the gas company by the commission will stand. Previously, the supreme court remanded the case to the commission for a change in the valuations of leaseholds, claiming the valuations fixed by the commission were not sufficiently high.

A copy of the letter to the commission was sent by Clerk Larkin to Gov. Myers Y. Cooper, who turned it over to the commission for reply.

In arguments for a franchise here, officials of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co. have claimed settlement of the Logan case will not be made for many months, and that when settled it will have but little bearing on the local situation. City officials anticipate the order of a refund on rates collected here under bond by the company, when the case is settled.

Officials of the company are expected to ask council Monday night to unofficially sanction a proposal by which the company would be given a franchise after a main line to Green Camp, connecting with a trunk line, is completed. It is claimed the Green Camp line will be necessary to furnish the city with an adequate supply of gas in winter months.

OHIO CENSORS BAN PRISON LIFE MOVIE

"The Big House" Rejected After Weeks of Parley by Officials.

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 20—After weeks of parley and indecision as to whether "The Big House," a motion picture which depicts prison life and conditions as they are supposed to exist in the state penal institutions, should be permitted exhibition in Ohio, the Ohio board of censorship today finally rejected the picture on the ground that it might prove harmful to the younger generation.

Representatives of the producers of the film visited Columbus last week for conferences with both Governor Myers Y. Cooper and John L. Clifton, state director of education and chairman of the censorship board. Before returning to New York, William A. Orr, production executive of the film company, told International News Service that he was confident the picture would eventually be approved for exhibition in Ohio.

The film was first submitted to the censorship board last June, only two months after 320 convicts perished in flames and smoke at the Ohio State penitentiary here.

Commenting on the decision, P. G. Wood, business manager of the Motion Picture Owners of Ohio said "it is an insult to the intelligence of the people of Ohio as it reflects upon their ability to think for themselves. In every other state in the union this picture is being shown. Banning of the film means a loss to the theater owners of the state of about $1,500,000."

Democratic campaign headquarters here was quick to seize upon the rejection of the prison film as an opportunity for an attack upon the Republican administration. Henry G. Brunner of Mansfield, issued a statement, taking the board of censors to task severely.

THREE MEN WHO TOOK POSTAL JOBS HERE ABOUT 1900 STILL AT WORK

John Davis, Frank Thomas and E. E. Patten Near 30-Year Mark.

BACK in the days when Marionites were beginning to think about figuring dates in the new century and in the early part of 1900 three young men decided that the local postoffice would be a nice place in which to work. Suiting the action to the idea they applied for work and today finds them nearing the 30-year mark of continuous association in the service at the Marion postoffice. All are employed in the mailing division of the office.

John E. Davis of 231 Orchard street, was the first of the trio to enter service, the record entry showing that he took up his work in March, 1899, when the postoffice was located on West Center street. Frank E. Thomas residing on Harding Highway E, entered the service Aug. 8, 1901, and E. E. Patten also residing on Harding Highway E, entered the service Sept. 29, 1902.

Mr. Davis was appointed a substitute carrier serving in this capacity for nearly three years and in July, 1902, obtained a clerkship. During his years of serving as substitute and carrier he took a turn at all the routes in the city and as clerk took his turn at working all night in the office looking after the incoming and outgoing mail.

Mr. Thomas served four years at the general delivery window and as distribution clerk, and since that time has been in the mailing division. Mr. Patten also was well known to callers at the general delivery window early in 1900 serving six years in that department.

Although this trio rarely come in contact with those whom they serve, they are the ones who more than once save many a traveling salesmen from getting called on the carpet by remembering the town in which their firm is located and they are the ones who can explain why aunt Carrie and

Federal Officers Included in "Reception Committee" for Flight Caravan.

By United Press

GREAT FALLS, Mont., Sept. 20—Many bottles of fine Canadian liquors, acquired as the fliers toured the northern country, were left behind today by the National air tour planes scheduled to fly to Cheyenne, Wyo.

A welcoming committee they had not expected met the tourists when they arrived late yesterday from Rethbridge, Alberta, completing the day's flight of the long reliability tour which is taking them through many sections of the U. S. and Canada.

"Officially" Welcomed

In the "reception committee" were a number of United States customs agents who cared nothing at all for a widespread belief that nothing would be done about it if the aviators brought back a few bottles of the "real stuff" when they returned across the border.

While spectators and members of the official reception committee jeered, the agents searched the planes as they landed and from some of the most unexpected places they produced enough liquor cases to make quite a fire behind the airport hangar a while later.

The ship owners who did not declare their liquor were fined the usual $5 a pint, but those who did declare the goods were merely relieved of it and dismissed. All the liquor was dumped into an old washtub behind the hangar. Spectators who attempted to scoop up drinks with their hands were chased away.

Notable Fliers Named

Col. C. E. Sheridan, collector of customs, refused to give out names of the fliers fined. Spectators said William S. Brock was one of those fined $5 and that liquor was taken from the planes of Frank Hawks, George Haldeman, Tom Coldy, Wesley Smith and others. It was said Hawks was fined $30 for liquor taken from his famous racing plane.

CURTIS FACING 2-YEAR TERM

Former Canton Official Found Guilty of Part in Graft Conspiracy.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Sept 20—Edward E. Curtis, former safety director at Canton, O., today was confronted with a two-year term in the Atlanta penitentiary for his part in an alleged vice and liquor protection organization.

Curtis, the first to face trial in the government's war on the "Jungle," Canton's underworld district, was convicted late yesterday of conspiracy to violate the prohibition laws and aiding and abetting in the maintenance of a nuisance.

The former safety director, who held office while his brother C. C. Curtis was mayor, was charged with having accepted thousands of dollars from bootleg and vice operators as one of the chief cogs in an alleged protection ring existing with the aid of former city and police officials.

He was indicted with five others as the result of a long department of justice investigation into the "jungle." Former Councilman Arthur B. Drukenbrod, who was to have been tried jointly with Curtis, pleaded guilty and was one of the government's chief witnesses. Ellis Darany, former police sergeant, is to go on trial next Tuesday.

Curtis was convicted on the tes-

Liner Statendam Arrives in Port with Windows Dashed Out by Waves.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 20—A severe equinoctial gale today strewed a large section of the western coast of Europe with the tolls of its fury, various kinds of craft being wrecked and many others imperilled.

At Dover the ship Mavis was washed from its anchorage and smashed on the beach.

The steamer drifter Champion was wrecked while entering Looe-Mouth harbor last night. Its crew of seven were taken off by means of ropes.

Much damage was done on land also in the British Isles, while the English channel, always noted for its roughness, rolled up tremendous seas and all except the staunchest vessels suspended traffic on that waterway.

Vessels from America also came through terrific seas. The liner Statendam reached Plymouth from New York with nine windows on the promenade deck smashed by waves, while the Aurania went through three days of gales and mountainous waves.

The storm has been raging since last night but reports from the southwestern coast of England this afternoon said the gale had attained a force of 100 miles an hour and thus gave new cause for apprehension.

More than a dozen vessels most of the small craft, have been wrecked or badly damaged in British waters.

News from the continent showed conditions to be just as bad in the channel, along the French Atlantic coast and as far south as Spain.

By United Press

The Auroch returned to Brest after losing one member of its crew. The man was swept overboard and drowned as the tug tried to approach the distressed vessel. The Auroch was unable to reach the Tuscania on account of the severe storm in the English channel.

J. R. Martin Faces Liquor Charge After Appearance at Police Station.

The upside-down license plate on Ray Buel's car that resulted in his arrest Thursday night, and the discovery of three gallons of alleged whisky in the car, today had implicated another man in liquor charges and had netted the city $125.

Buel said the fact that the license plate was on wrong was his fault but denied possession of the liquor. J. R. Martin came to police station to arrange bond for Buel and suddenly found himself faced with a charge of illegal possession of liquor, as he had been riding in the car with Buel.

Arraigned in municipal court, Martin pleaded guilty to owning the liquor and was fined $100. Police then charged that Buel was using license plates on the Dodge that belonged on another car. He pleaded guilty to that charge and was fined $25. Both fines have been paid.

Grimes golden apples headlined the list of newcomers on the Marion market this week. The new arrivals sell at two pounds for 25 cents. Other varieties of apples are selling at two and three pounds for 25 cents.

The early Grimes are slightly smaller than the later crop will be, but they are of good quality and have been a popular seller since a carload of them arrived here the middle of the week.

With the advent of the apple season, sweet cider finds a popular market at 50 cents a gallon.

New York peaches were selling this week between prices of $1.85 and $2.75 a bushel, replacing the Island peaches and others from northern Ohio.

Lombard plums from northern Ohio were available this week. Another contribution from the north part of the state was celery cabbage, which arrived Thursday to sell at 15 and 20 cents a stalk.

A few advance shipments of grapefruit are being marketed here at 15 and 20 cents each, although the season proper has not been launched. Within a few days, a majority of local grocers will be supplied with this fruit, which has been a popular seller through winter months.

Will Finds Situation at Reno Funny and Sad as He Watches Women Waiting Turn in City's Divorce Mill

Most Separations Prearranged, Rogers Learns from Noted Judge.

Herb fixes em up when they need money.

WELL all I know is just what I read in the papers, and what comes along where I happen to be messing around, I dont care where, or how much you have traveled, if you want to hit a unique neck of the woods go up around Lake Tahoe, and over into Nevada, Reno, Carson City, Virginia City, all those Hot Springs up around there, then that Lake Tahoe 6,300 hundred hoofs high, 26 miles long and 12 wide, and all the resorts around it, and the California and Nevada line running right through the lake. In fact it makes a bend right in the lake. Its not only the unique country, its the people too that you run onto up there Lots of Frisco people have their summer homes up there, the Fleishackers have a great place, and he goes back to his business and rounds up a new gang of guests and brings em up for every week end. He has got that big old Boy that played such great football for Stanford, and a fine big Kid he is too, and not spoiled. This Fleishacker is the man that every big business man or financier knows. I have heard more tales of big men being temporarily in need of money and gong to the pohne and calling up "Herb Fleishacker" and he would fix em up. I never heard of a business man that had done as many good deeds for his friends

Swedish House

Then down the Lake further on Emerald Bay Mrs. Knight has I'll bet the most unique House in America, a Swedish House. Now we never thought about the Swedes having houses. We just kinder pictured em being born and then leaving the next day for Minnesota, and then live in American made homes. But say on their native heath those Johnsons know how to live. This house of hers is absolutely authentic, and its the most livable thing I ever saw, all heavy substantial stuff; lots of fireplaces up off the floor level, and most of them in the corners of the room, and low ceilings, and heavy panelings, and the outbuildings have sod covered roofs, and its in a great setting, and she owns Emerald bay, and its backed up with those giant saw tooth mountains, and a big waterfall coming down at the back of the place.

Then another great one is Anita Baldwins summer place just off the big Lake on Fallen Leaf Lake. Its log, the biggest ones you ever saw.

The Living room with the highest ceiling, and everything in it is Indian, and I mean authentic Indian, as she has one of the greatest Indian collections in America. A great part of it is now in the Southwestern Meuseum. There is not one thing you see or touch when you get in that house that's not Indian, or Indian design. Dishes, Knives Forks, all the cushions of the chairs and settees are cowskin covered, sofa pillows are woven corn husks. She has the oddest mantel in her room. Her Father Lucky Baldwin made his first big money in mining, and you've all seen these piles of rocks of odd colors, and mineral contents that most old homes used to possess. (I know we had some and I been trying for years to find out what become of them). Well she has a concrete mantel, and on the out edges of that mantel is all these wonderfully valuable pieces of mineral, imbedded in the concrete, and of course hers was valuable as it was a fine collection of her Father's that had come from his diggings in the old "Comstock" not many miles from where these are now.

Baskets Expensive

I was admiring some of her Indian Baskets, and happened to say that I wanted to get hold of some, and she said, "Over in Carson City there is some very nice ones, they were made by a very famous Washor Indian Woman now dead, but they are rather dear, they run about ten thousand each." When I regained part consciousness, I thanked her for the information and asked if she thought I could get a slight reduction if I sent over and got say a dozen or so. I wouldent give ten thousand dollars for the basket they had Moses stored away in the bullrushes in.

But we must get away from homes and get to the real interest up around Nevada, and that's the "Divorcees." All of em don't live in Reno. They Live over on, or near the California line, they have to serve three months, if they leave the State during that time and stay a week, they have to add that on to their sentence at the end. Most of them are young Women. There is on an average of about 2,000 here all the time. Two judges in Reno are trying cases most all the time.

Judge Bartlestt, one of Nevadas most famous Judges, was down to watch us shoot our Picture, and he is a mighty pleasant, shrewd, fine little fellow. He tells me that a great percentage of the women who come, it planned and premeditates with the Husband. He has fallen in love with somebody, or she has, or they both have, and they have decided they cant tough it out so they claim desertion, or something, and the allmony is generally arranged beforehand between them, if any. It's a funny colony, and it aint funny, its sad. You talk to these women, and most of em would like to go back and have another try with the husband. But they are game and they wont come till he wires, and he is all hopped up over some other younger Gal, and he dont wire, and they sadly go through with it. Course you dont hear the mans side out here. They dont always tell you about the man they are going to marry the next day after the decree. But its really pitiful. Course there is the old Stagers here who think no more of changing husbands than they do their brand of Gin. But there is many a heart break here, and lots of children, thats the tough part. Some of them their Mothers told me they hadent told them yet, they thought they were just here for a summer vacation. Divorce aint so bad I guess when its only the participants suffer, but its sure tough on the children. Well anyhow its a great Industry, and I guess about the only way to stop it is to stop marriage.

WITH EDNA S. DUTTON

A TEST for nerves are the strange adventures of Dick Coombes and his friend Juan Mizagis as told by Edmund Snell in "The White Owl." There is a hint of the supernatural in the appearance of the White Owl which leads its victims through a maze of tragedy and death. The adventures take place in Mexico, London and Paris.

Mizagis who boasted among his ancestors one of the ancient Toltec race, was compiling a book dealing with the customs and religion of the Toltecs before the conquest of Mexico by Cortes. More cruel than the war god of the Aztecs was the god who had for his semblance a white owl and whose priests offered with savage ritual, human sacrifices upon his altar in the ancient temples. Mitzagis had infected his friend with his own enthusiasm and together they sought in Mexico for the temple of the White Owl and its buried treasure.

Strange things happen to the adventures when they raise an iron door from solid rocks where it had been fixed centuries ago and when Juan falls into the cave. There is more mystery with the appearance of Nala the strange dark-eyed girl who rescues Juan and heals his injuries.

Not content with the happenings in Mexico the author takes his readers through murder after murder as they follow the wake of the White Owl.

MEMORIES with the charming gracefulness of Hamlin Garland's "Roadside Meetings" make pleasant reading whatever the literary interests of the reader may or may not be.

Garland's associations have been largely in the realm of literature and the arts. He pictures, therefroe, for a new and different generation such figures of a past time as Edwin Booth, Mark Twain, Walt Whitman, Riley, Roosevelt and the author's most intimate friend, William Dean Howells.

Sketching in some of his previous material from "A Son of the Middle Border," Garland tells intimately of his associations. Many of them are given credit for a large part in his own development from a Dakota farm boy, who went east instead of west and arrived in Boston in 1881 with $410 and a burning desire for culture.

HIS education was accumulated by reading all day in the public library and attending at night free lectures or the Shakespearean performance of Booth, until he broke into book reviewing and thus into the literary world he so much admired.

Garland makes the period still live when Boston was the hub of American culture and his anecdotes are a continuing series through which one is introduced to a list of picturseque characters from Whitman in his white beard and broad-brmmed white hat to Henry James, making the rounds of his village with the air of a curate.

New Novels Are Entertaining Reading

HE-MEN of tremendous virility are written about in two of the newest novels, which have no other points of similarity.

"The Great Jasper" of Fulton Oursler was a street-car motorman who became an astrologer on the Atlantic City boardwalk, a change as novel as the character.

Jasper Horn was a ladies' man, who left his psalm-singing wife not because he loved her less, but to show his son the way to joyful living. Yet his way of life fails to inspire sympathetic admiration.

Neither does that of old Ralph Wilder and his son in "The Big Barn" the second novel of young Walter D. Edmonds who last year wrote "Rome Haul."

"God's Drum" Tells Indian Tales

"GOD'S DRUM" is a collection of native Indian poems by Hartley Alexander and published by E. P. Dutton & Co. His "Manito Masks" is a collection of one-act plays based on Indian rituals. Both are illustrated by A. J. Haugseth and give a good idea of the symbolism and primitive imagination of the Indian. Late August marked the Indian ceremonial season in the Southwest. There are the great celebration of the First American, depicting Indian tribal life at Albuquerque, N. M., the Santa Fe Fiesta and the Hopi snake dances in Arizona. Later the Pueblos celebrate their harvest festivals. Alexander tells of these in his Indian tales.

Get Idea from Museum

FREDERICK IRVING ANDERSON admits that he got several of his ideas for his recently published "Book of Murder" from the exhibits at the Museum of Peaceful Arts in New York. For example there is the "electric eye" which controls a cell sensitive only to the color the intended victim is wearing and which at the fatal moment causes a heavy object to become dislodged and fall on the head of the passerby. Mr. Anderson has used this with considerable success in one of his stories. Those in charge of the museum justify their exhibit of such devices by saying "most of the murder methods suggested have equally effective uses as protectives and detractors of crime."

Marion Men To Tell of Trip to Europe at Meet

Ernest Mahler of 432 Mary street and John Creasap of 500 Mound street who sailed from New York on the Europa for a visit with relatives, will give an account of their trip to Germany and Switzerland at a public meeting of the German Beneficial Union lodge No. 682, Monday at Druids hall. Mahler will speak in German and Creasap will speak in English.

Mahler visited his father, four brothers and two sisters whom he had not seen for 25 years, at their home in Thueringen, Germany. Mr. Creasap visited Erfurth, Weimar, Potsdam and Essen, Germany, the last place in which Mahler worked from 1896 to 1901 in the Krupp Steel works. Mahler said that while he worked at the steel company, the main product was war material and that now the products are almost all farm implements.

While in Berlin the Reichstag was in session. They attended a session. They also visited the Kaiser's castles, which since the war are open to visitors. The main building has 720 rooms, according to Mahler.

The two men also visited Cologne, Duesseldorf and Coblenz Mahler lived two years in Coblenz and left there in 1905 to make his home in the United States. From there they went to Switzerland to view the Alps and other places of interest, including Bassel, Bern, Lucerne and Zurich.

Both Mahler and Creasap will speak on the conditions as they knew them at the time they lived in Germany and the change that has taken place. They will tell of the places of interest they saw. They have invited anyone interested in hearing of their trip to attend the meeting Monday night.

They visited Weimer, the place where Schiller and Goethe, the great German poets lived and the place where the German constitution of the republic was drawn up after the World war. Eisenbach, one of the stops on the trip, is the place where Martin Luther translated the Bible. The room in which he worked while making the translation has been preserved as he left it.

First and third weeks—Monday morning, Oak street; Monday afternoon Vernon Heights; Tuesday, Davids street; Wednesday morning, Forest Lawn; Wednesday afternoon, State street; Thursday morning, North Main street; Thursday afternoon, Olney avenue; Friday, Pearl street.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, Sept. 21

SUNDAY'S horoscope points to many pleasant, prosperous and in a way inspiring circumstances and events. Social, religious and cultural activities, will be under high stimulus and there will be much to interest and gratify. Intellectual pursuits are particularly encouraged and should thrive.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a particularly active and diversified year, with all sorts of interests and aims flourishing. It is a time for pushing toward high goals, under the high planetary impetus, and with the purely personal activities and affiliations most felicitiously aspected. A child born on this day should be clever and versatile, with a talent for reaching out toward whatever pinacle of achievement it may set its heart upon Its particular fort, however, may be literary.

For Monday, Sept. 22

MONDAY'S astrological forecast holds promise of lively conditions and some good prospects in employment and new ventures, but nevertheless there is an augury of stubborn obstacle, with disappointment and delay to be disposed of. This situation may be relieved by the keen and sagacious mental status also fostered by benefic stars, quickening and enlightening.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year in which there may be lively enough conditions, with some recognition in employment and a degree of progress in new projects, but nonetheless there will be a tenacious obstacle to overcome, with its delays and disappointments. But the mind will be found keen and well fortified to cope with thwarting circumstances. A child born on this day should be mentally alert, sagacious and shrewd, qualities it may need to summon to its aid in surmounting difficulties in its patch. It should be assisted to this point of stamina and efficiency by a careful physicial supervision in its early life.

How To Be Saved

A SERMONETTE
BY REV. E. RADEBAUGH
Pastor Calvary Evangelical Church

THE Bible declares that Salvation is Jesus Christ. "Jesus, who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification and redemption" (1 Cor. 1:30). The Lord is my light and my salvation" (Psa. 27:1).

We are made children of God by adoption—by birth adoption.

As no child can get into your family and be flesh of your flesh and bone of your bone except by birth, even so none are members of God's family except those who are born again. Hence the oft-repeated phrase, "The fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man" can only be from the evil one, and is rank universalism.

He is only the Father of those who believe," and "with the heart man believeth unto righteousness," and not with the head.

There are three steps to Salvation.

First—The very first step to be taken is confession.

John, the beloved, sounds the word when he says: "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins (John 1:9).

Unless I confess to God my sins I am lost forever. We should also confess our faults. Oh, dear unsaved friends, confess it all, confess it now to Jesus Christ.

Second—The next step in salvation is repentance. "Except ye repent ye shall all likewise perish" (Luke 13:3). "Let the wicked forsake his ways," quit them, turn his back upon them. Some people are sorry for what they have done but they are not willing to "quit their meanness."

Third—The third step in salvation is take. Having confessed and repented, you are inquiring, "what shall I take?" Well, take Jesus, "the lamb for sinners slain." He will instantly become to you salvation. By faith I take Him and His loving pardon.

The New Tariff Commission.

Five of the six members authorized by the Smoot-Hawley act having been named by President Hoover, the new tariff commission began to function this week. The five thus far named are:

Henry P. Fletcher, Pennsylvania, Republican, chairman.

Edgar B. Brossard, Utah, Republican.

John Lee Coulter, North Dakota, Republican.

Alfred P. Dennis, Maryland, Democrat.

The sixth member, who is to be a Democrat, is to be named by the President within ten days or two weeks.

Of the five named, all have had tariff experience save Chairman Fletcher. Two of the remaining four are former college presidents and the other two were formerly college professors.

Chairman Fletcher's thirty years of service to the government in the diplomatic field is too well known to make extended comment on it necessary. Whether in China, Mexico, Belgium or Italy, his record of accomplishment was a splendid one.

Member Dennis is a low tariff Democrat who taught economics in Princeton while Woodrow Wilson was president of that university and in 1922 was the personal representative in Europe of Mr. Hoover, when the latter was secretary of commerce. Mr. Page was named to the tariff commission in 1918 by President Wilson and served as its chairman from 1920 to 1922. Member Brossard has served on the commission since 1925 and Dr. Coulter was chief economist of the old board, which went out of commission Tuesday night, and for the past year was chairman of the advisory committee.

While the selections of the President have come in for much commendatory comment, the manner of their naming has not wholly escaped criticism. The senate bad boy, the gifted but irrepressible Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, has broken into the spot-light in denunciation of the delay of the President in naming the sixth member. "The action of the President in withholding at this time the other member of the commission," he charges, "is rank partisanship and inexcusable. In withholding the sixth member, he authorizes the three Republican members to have full sway in the reorganization work."

It is not for us to say what may or may not be the President's motive in delaying the naming of the sixth member. All the five already named were not selected at the same time, and it may be that Mr. Hoover is experiencing difficulty in finding a Democrat coming up to his estimate of the necessary qualifications. But if the delay is for the reason charged by Senator Harrison, it can not be said to be a bad one. Any president would rather have a commission of the importance of the tariff body organized by his political friends rather than his political enemies. Candidly we do not believe that such is the purpose behind the delay of the appointment, but if it should ever turn out that such was the reason for the delay we just as candidly say that we will admire Mr. Hoover for it.

Both Selective and Restrictive.

Commissioner General of Immigration Harry E. Hull did well, during the course of his address over the air a few days since, to call attention to what the unemployment conditions might have been throughout the land during the last ten months were our immigration laws today what they were when over a million were coming to us annually.

The commissioner general's plea was for the adoption of a policy of restrictive immigration under which admission to our country could be denied to any alien, no matter what his nationality, who sought entrance during a season of unemployment here to secure work, the commissioner general's expressed view being that, at such a time, entrance should be barred to all aliens whose presence might in any way complicate an existing unemployment situation.

Statistics show that approximately 241,700 immigrants entered this country last year, and it is not unreasonable to assume that half of them secured employment at the expense of American workmen, mechanics and artisans. With probably 1,500,000 and possibly 2,000,000 unemployed in the country at this time, what would have been the situation had 1,218,480 immigrants been permitted to enter as in 1914, or 706,896 as late as 1924? Following up the commissioner general's thought, we have a picture which is far from pleasing for contemplation. But a far more distressing picture would be contemplation of what might have been the situation had a million or two immigrants been admitted annually for the past ten or fifteen years. Had immigration not been restricted in recent years to the extent it has been, the plans evolved and the methods employed to smooth the way for a return to normal conditions would have proved, beyond all question, utterly unavailing.

Passing for a time the effect of immigration on unemployment, Mr. Hull spoke in advocacy of a selective immigration policy. "If we had had selective immigration fifty years ago," he said, "there would have been no underworld problem of the magnitude or character that our peace officers now have on their hands. And while the criminal is primarily a social menace, and should be dealt with first as such, he also presents an economic problem of great importance."

It may be said that the commissioner general of immigration in his championship of selective immigration has expressed himself in a manner in which few, if any, in elective office would, for very obvious reasons, think of doing. But the probable fact that politicians, especially those holding public office, would consider it the course of wisdom to refrain from endangering their political fences by making such a statement as this of the immigration commissioner general in no way negatizes its force nor its acceptance by many as possessing a sufficient element of truth to justify its utterance.

Be all this as it may, and regardless of any possible controversy, there is one fact beyond dispute. This is our country. It was won at the cost of the blood of our ancestors and handed down to us. We and those who have come to us from foreign lands to become Americans and good citizens have developed it and made it what it is, and we have and should exercise the right to say who may come and enjoy it with us. This right has been repeatedly questioned by some foreign governments in recent years, but it is our right just the same. We of America now closely approach 130,000,000 in number. Surely there are enough of us to meet present population demands, and we are in position to say not only who may come to us, but who may not. Our immigration laws should be both selective and restrictive.

WISCONSIN DYNASTS.

Aboard the brig, Wisconsin, the La Follette boys are the cook and captain bold and all the rest of it now They have literally devoured their rivals. Bob is United States senator, and Phil has been nominated for governor. The other senator, Mr. Blaine, is a close ally of the family. But if Phil later wants to sit with his brother in the senate, that alliance will not save Mr. Blaine. His fate will be that of the boa'n tight and the midshipmite aboard the "Nancy."

By general agreement, Governor Kohler has been an excellent executive. He is an industrialist of great success, benevolence and importance. He made independent appointments. He strove with unemployment manfully, not dismissing a single employe from his extensive works. He sought to defend the administration from the onslaught of the La Follettes, but ebbed with the wet tide. Nothing could save him. The victims of economic depression voted against him as a representative of the official powers which could not restore prosperity. The strict party stalwarts were indifferent to him because he hadn't exactly played the patronage game. And the great body of voters rallied to the name of La Follette and overwhelmingly supported the son of the departed hero who was their idol for two generations. If the boys had been old enough before their father died, it is entirely probable that one of them would have sat in the senate with him and the other in the state house at Madison. Wisconsin has not yet had too much of that talented family.

In the senate Bob has made a good record and has impressed his older colleagues with his steadfastness, courage and skill. At Kansas City the manner in which he faced a hostile convention and won its applause, if not its agreement, is admiringly remembered. Phil has even greater gifts as an orator, and the belief in Wisconsin is that he is an upstanding, honorable young man of unusual ability. His personality repelled the darts about the "royal family" which the Kohlerites leveled at him. To have two leaders of the same faction in full control is no new experience for Wisconsin; the only new thing is that they are brothers. But what queer Republicans they are!—New York Times.

Pioneer Days in Darke County.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Probably because of the historical importance of Greenville, the seat of the county, Darke county is generally thought of as one that early saw much advancement. Such is not the fact, however. The swampy condition of the land prevented settlers from choosing that county as a place to locate. As late as 1824 there was not a road in the county other than those cut by St. Clair's and Wayne's armies and the old Indian trails.

Most of the settlers brought with them large families and to build to house them was in itself quite a problem. There were, at this time, but two churches in the entire county—a Methodist and a Baptist church—and long distances had to be covered by those who wished to attend these services.

Of schools there were very few and these established and supported by voluntary, private effort. One difficulty was felt there, which was not to be contended with in other parts of the state. The teachers to be had were miserably prepared for their work. They did not even measure up to the three "R" requirement. Neither grammar nor geography were taught in any of these pioneer schools. They did essay arithmetic, but only the simplest operations were attempted.

In other sections of the state very well educated young men from the East came to try their fortunes and fell naturally to teaching, but Darke county had to content itself with rough, uncouth bullies, better fitted to enforce discipline than to impart knowledge. That was not wholly to be despised as a qualification in a teacher, for full-grown pupils were included in the attendance, and muscular strength was often called for.

A school having been provided for and a teacher secured, the settlers often came together at the place selected and in a single day constructed the log cabin in which it was to be carried on. A puncheon floor, clapboard roof, and greased paper covered windows and split-log benches, there was nothing needed that the pioneer could not produce on the ground.

Tendency to Goitre.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

It is unfortunate that, in this enlightened age, so many persons are actually starved for one or more essential food elements. If they could but know it, the lack of such material interferes with their good health, often to a very great extent.

These bodies of ours must have an unfailing supply of every single food element that each individual cell, fibre and organ requires. If the food or water intake does not contain the right amounts of these needed elements, there is sure to be trouble.

There are a number of ductless glands in the human body and they are of superlative importance to us. We can not thrive and perhaps not live without them, and when they do not function properly trouble begins.

One of the most important of these glands is the "thyroid." This is situated in the neck on either side of what is sometimes termed the "Adam's Apple." Goitre is an enlargement of the thyroid gland.

The thyroid gland must be in good working order if we are to have health. The gland takes out of the blood the iodine captured from the food. It prepares for the body a substance called "thyroidine." This secretion is taken up by the blood and distributed to other parts of the body. For this reason the heart and the nervous system are affected.

The prominent symptom is the tumor in the neck. In certain forms of goitre there is bulging of the yes, rapid heart action, trembling and general weakness. The nutrition of the body is disturbed.

The thyroid gland is not always noticeably enlarged in goitre. But there is a change of some kind in the secretion, which results in the disturbances.

It has been found that the absence of iodine from the diet may be followed by goitre. If iodine is not found in the food or drinking water in sufficient quantities, trouble develops

In localities remote from the sea, goitre is much more likely to appear. This fact drew attention to the desirability of using sea foods, such as fish, as a preventive of goitre. It has been established by chemical analysis that fresh water fish do not abound in iodine while salt water fish do.

Fortunately for the localities where iodine is lacking, it has been found that the preservative process of canning sea fish does not change the iodine content. On this account canned salmon, for instance, is a splendid food for every one. Eating more sea fish is one way to overcome the tendency to goitre.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

A READER. Q—What can I do to keep my hands in better condition? They are in water every day?

A—Try using a good cold cream every night upon retiring and be sure to dry thoroughly at all times. Try to use a good pure soap.

L. M. S. Q—If the heart itself is normal, what would account for pains in this region? Is a condition of this kind serious? Would nursing be apt to cause trouble of this nature?

A—The trouble may be due to indigestion or neuralgia. Correct the diet and avoid indigestion and over-fatigue. Not necessarily, but the cause should be determined and cleared up. I doubt that this would be a contributing factor. Copyright, 1930, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Prayer—"Go to dark Gethsemane, ye that feel the tempter's power."

Cyrus Hall McCormick.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

It has been said that, the stroke of an ironical fate, decreed that the invention of a Northerner, Eli Whitney, made inevitable the civil war, and the invention of a Southerner, Cyrus McCormick, made inevitable the ending of that war in favor of the North

McCormick was something more than a mere inventor, for inventors are notoriously impractical in business. McCormick was a business genius, a crusader for his own rights and a high-powered organizer of his own interests.

McCormick's father was obsessed with the idea of inventing a reaper. His young son, Cy, followed the progress of his father's invention without interest. When the extraordinary contraption was given a trial, it proved a humiliating failure.

Robert McCormick lived to see the day when a reaper, invented by Cyrus along entirely different lines, won a complete success. He had the grace and the greatness to say: "I am proud to have a son who can do what I failed to do."

The first reaper, which at a public exhibition cut six acres of oats in an afternoon, dates from 1831. Although McCormick had introduced seven principles, all of which are an indispensable part of every reaper constructed today, improvements of great value were subsequently to be made.

McCormick was an extraordinarily ingenious mechanic. The original machine, which he invented, is essentially the one we have today. But it only performed one function—to cut the crop. A farm hand had to walk inside the platform, and rake off upon the ground the grain cut by the sliding blade of the reaper. Human harvesters, who followed the reaper, gathered up the bundles and tied a few trips of grain around them, making the sheaf.

This was not a satisfactory solution of the problem. The work for the binders was exceedingly wearying. In 1858, the March brothers solved the problem in a particular way. Two men stood on a footboard fixed to the machine. They seized the grain as it fell upon the platform, bound it into sheaves, and threw it out upon the field. But it was onerous, sweat-producing labor for the binders, who had to work very fast to keep up with the machine's product.

In 1874, this difficulty was surmounted by one Charles B. Withington, of Jonesville, Wisconsin. He invented a mechanism composed of two steel arms which seized the grain, twisted a wire around it, cut the wire, and tossed the completed sheaf to the earth. Th work of the reaper was now wholly done by the reaper —a man or woman merely was required to drive the two horses and perform mechanical operations.

Yet all was not yet well with the reaper. It was alleged by complaining farmers that bits of wire got into the straw and were swallowed by the cattle. Bits of metal even got into the wheat itself and actually set some mills on fire, by giving out sparks in grinding.

Binders which used twine instead of wire were almost simultaneously invented by John E. Appleby and Marquis L. Gonham. By 1880 the self-binding reaper was complete. William H. Seward said that the harvesting machine "pushed the frontier westward at the rate of thirty miles a year." The great International Harvester company produces hundreds of thousands of harvesters annually. McCormick's invention freed the world from constant anxiety about its food supply.—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

HOOVER INTERESTED

Says Problem Is Departmental, However; No Action by Him Likely.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20— The ... of Secretary Hyde's blunt ... to the Chicago board of ... bearihs specula... wheat there "by the Russian ... was being awaited ... today in Washington.

President Hoover has interested himself in the situation but held the view today that the matter was departmental and consequently was not expected to make any move. The secretary of agriculture conferred with him before asking John A. Bunnell, president of the Chicago board, "what provision your exchange has made or can make for the protection of our American farmers from such activities."

Mr. Hyde declined today to supplement the information contained in the telegram sent last night, pending a reply from Mr. Bunnell. Dr. J. W. T. Duvel, administrator of the grain futures act who directed the inquiry into reports of Russian activity, likewise refused to talk.

While watching developments, the state department said it had taken no action in the matter.

Hyde's telegram said the Russian government had engaged in "heavy short selling," of grain, and that this contributed to the fall in wheat's price and injured the farmers.

Secretary Hyde informed the President the Russians recently had sold at least 5,000,000 bushels of wheat for December delivery.

"Short" selling is the term ordinarily applied to a transaction in which a person not possessed of wheat undertakes to sell it for future delivery, on the prospect that the price will fall in the future and enable a profit on the transaction.

T. M. ZINK of Iowa, who hated women, leaves $40,000 to be held in trust for 75 years. When the estate amounts to $3,000,000 a library will be built with this sign carved in stone: "No Woman Admitted."

And he will only allow books written by men to be kept in the library.

That would leave out "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," the "Letters of Madame de Sevigne," interesting fragments of "Sappho," and, indirectly, the books by men that amount to anything, since such books are usually inspired by women.

Mr. Zink's idea is particularly foolish, because what brains men have are formed during a period of nine months before they are born.

And the brain created during that period depends on the brain of the mother, and on her THINKING before the baby's birth.

Fools, planning to starve the brains of mothers, would succeed in starving the brains of their sons.

The will should be scrapped and the money distributed among other Zinks, on the ground that it is opposed to public policy.

MRS. McCORMICK is not the only Ruth "amid the alien corn" of politics.

Mrs. Ruth Pratt of New York, now in congress, is running for another term, and will probably get it.

She represents energetically the two familiar lines:

"First, then, a woman will or won't,
depend on't;
If she will do't, she will; and
there's an end on't."

At present her mind is on beating a Socialist candidate, Heywood Broun, tall and stately as a redwood tree, and her more serious competitor, the Democrat.

It amazes others in politics to see how Mrs. Pratt works, ringing doorbells, according to yesterday's report, saying to her fellow citizens, male and female:

"I want to represent you in congress, you're entitled to know what I think. Ask me."

Mrs. Pratt began as an alderman in New York and surprised the masculine mental giants that surrounded her by telling them that they were "so many rubber stamps," which was marvelously accurate.

GANDHI, 62 years old yesterday, spent the morning writing, making cloth on his small hand loom in the afternoon.

His remedy for India's troubles is to make cloth by hand, to hurt Britain's trade, and passive disobedience to Britain's rule.

How far will that get 300,000,000 inhabitants of India, with Afghans on the north eagerly waiting a chance to murder them, and 60,000,000 Mohammedans living in India, also hoping for an opportunity to eliminate Hindus?

A marvelously sincere, earnest, self-starving little man is Gandhi. But something else is needed for the problem that confronts him.

3 MEN ON POSTAL JOBS SINCE 1900

John Davis, Frank Thomas and E. E. Patten Near 30-Year Mark.

Uncle Jim weren't met at the station by producing the stampless or addressless letter. And, if you please, this is not an occasional error but practically an every-day occurrence.

These men can tell of days when a working day was anywhere from 10 to 16 hours and when letters were handstamped and also back-stamped on the old wooden block and of when the mail bag held only a few sacks compared to something like 90 in these days of parcel post, air mail and special deliveries. Special delivery letters in those days were handled through the Headley drug store and were not very numerous. Today the special delivery work occupies the time of one man and the monthly receipts average around the $125 mark.

Receipts in those early days of the nineteenth century averaged between $23,000 and $24,000 annually, and today this sum is often exceeded in the quarterly receipts and on several occasions has been equaled in monthly receipts. Handstamping the letters was something of a tiresome as well as tedious job and seems quite antiquated in comparison with the speedy electric canceling machine, which, when necessity demands can turn out 1,200 cancellations a minute. The daily cancellations number something near 15,000.

The play is a comedy of American home life in a family living on an average income, with a wife and daughter inclined to be social climbers. A younger sister, the pal of her father and the bane of her mother's and older sister's lives, rights the family and adjusts the romances to suit the entire family.

The cast includes Miss Jean DeWolfe, Mrs. C. G. Smith, Miss Virginia Lott, Miss Marion Bush, Paul Knappenberger, Charles Wile, Charles Elicker, Dr. C. G. Smith and A. I. Hinklin.

Miss Ruth Louise Henderson has assisted Miss Crow as prompter.

The Mimes have issued announcements to the members, inviting them to attend with guests. The Mimes have also invited Marion persons interested in little theater work to attend their first presentation of the season.

Rodeo Riders Injured as Mounts Prove Unmanageable at Fair.

By Brush-Moore Leased Wire

LISBON, O., Sept. 20—It is evident that the cowpunchers attached to the rodeo which ended its exhibitions at the Columbiana county fair here yesterday yearn for the wide open spaces of the West and have taken a dislike to the close quarters and concrete fences of civilization.

Jack Nelson, one of the cowpunchers, was thrown from his bucking horse Friday and landed on a concrete fence. He sustained two fractured ribs and a punctured lung. His condition is serious. On Thursday, Bill McLain, another rider, was pinned under his mount and sustained a fractured ankle.

Report Huge Trust Fund for Son of John Raskob

The New York World said Mr. Raskob laughed away reports of the $2,000,000 trust fund as "just gossip."

"John, Jr., is a working boy," he said. "He is employed by a firm near Boston, and isn't going to be set up in business."

IOWA SLAYER TAKEN AFTER LONG SEARCH

Western Authorities Apprehend Gunman in Canton, Ohio, Today.

By Brush-Moore Leased Wire

CANTON, O., Sept. 20—Search for the slayers of Deputy Sheriff R. G. Sproat of Tipton, Ia., which extended south into Mexico and east to the Atlantic coast was ended here today when Wayne Kile, 24, was taken into custody by Sheriff H. V. Yackey, of Cedar County, Ia.

Kile, according to Stark county authorities, readily admitted that he was the member of a trio which fired from a machine and killed the Iowa deputy August 8 when a band of vigilantes attempted to stop their car near Davenport, Ia.

Kile waived extradition and started back to Iowa to go on trial for his life.

Sproat, a Tipton, Ia., business man had been commissioned a deputy sheriff with a band of vigilantes to apprehend a band of robbers which had been terrorizing Iowa towns.

Learning that a drug store in Davenport had been held up by two men and a girl Sproat with several other special deputies laid an ambush. When the car bearing Kile and his two companions came along shots were exchanged and Sproat was killed.

Sheriff Yackey learned that one of the trio in the car was a Mexican girl living near the international border in Texas. He picked her up.

Sheriff Yackey came to Canton with the Mexican girl and confronted Kile.

might extend his check as far back as 10 years.

Both Parties Represented

Those indicted were James Scanlon, Democrat, chairman of the board; Byron E. Morgan, Republican, clerk of the board; Carl W. Reilly, Democrat, member of the board; Ralph R. Klingler, Democrat, former clerk of the board; and Ernest N. Nemenyi, widely-known newspaper reporter.

The two Republican members, William C. Simcox and Sylvester Arnold were not indicted but were included in the jury's lengthy criticism of the board and in the suspension order. All of those indicted were free today under $2,000 bond except Klingler, who is in a hospital.

Morgan and Nemenyi demanded immediate arraignment and entered pleas of not guilty last night a few hours after the jury's partial report. Scanlon and Reilly waived preliminary hearing and are expected to plead next week.

No trial dates were fixed, and it was considered likely the cases would not be called until after the November election. In the meantime, the affairs of the board will be conducted by John J. Belknap, assistant to Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown.

Morgan is specifically charged with false certification and representation of a false bill; Nemenyi with presenting a false bill; Scanlon and Reilly with false certification for payment of public funds. Scanlon also is charged with forgery.

List of Charges

Five charges were contained in the jury's report. Those indicted were alleged to have conducted the office in a careless, negligent and wasteful manner; delegated powers to employes which should have been performed by board members; permitted cash vouchers to be made out to fictitious persons and payments to be made; rarely awarded contracts on a competitive basis, giving them instead to friends of the clerk and board members; and paying some persons who did not work for the board at all while others were paid out of proportion to services rendered.

"Light Goes Deeper"

Closing the case for the government, United States Attorney Wilfred J. Mahon said that "some light now and then penetrates the recesses of the jungle, enabling us to strike at influences far deeper and more sinister than the guilt or innocence of Ed Curtis."

Arrest Man, 70 for Murder of 46 Years Ago

By The Associated Press

TYLER, Tex., Sept. 20—James Neely, 70-year-old patriarch, must go to trial for a half-century-old murder because chance led him to the community where resides the son of the man he is charged with slaying.

His arrest yesterday on a warrant charging him with the murder of Hiram Cooley in Alabama in 1884, was the reward of years of watchful waiting on the part of Coley's son.

The son, A. C. Cooley, had kept careful watch over his neighbor, W. L. Neely, whom he had recognized as the brother of the man charged with his father's murder.

His patience was rewarded when the accused, a resident of Kentucky, came here for a visit. Cooley notified peace officers. Today an officer from Alabama was enroute to Tyler to take Neely to the scene of the crime for trial.

Neely admitted his identity. Officers said he made a verbal statement in which he told how he and Cooley had engaged in a fist fight after which he struck his adversary in the head with a rock.

Officers quoted the man as saying he "wandered around" for 10 years after the slaying. For years he lived in Ohio, where he reared a family of five children.

"I'm glad it's over," officers said Neely told them. "I have been running for 46 years and could not get it off my mind for a single minute."

Earley of 461 Evans road and Sheridan Severns, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Severns of 196 Patten street, were married this morning at 8:30 o'clock by Dr. C. E. Turley, pastor of Epworth M. E. church, at the parsonage on East Center street. The single ring service was read.

The bride wore for her wedding a shell pink chiffon gown fashioned on princess lines. An eggshell taffeta picture hat, silk gloves and slippers in the eggshell shade, completed her costume. She carried a bridal bouquet of Johanna Hill roses, baby breath and adiantum, tied with bridal ribbon.

Mr. and Mrs. Severns left on a wedding trip to Cleveland. Mrs. Severns wore for traveling an ensemble of brown jersey with eggshell and tan accessories. Upon their return they will make their home at Mt. Vernon, O., where Mr. Severns is employed as a machinist with the Cooper-Bacsmer Co.

Mrs. Severns graduated from Harding High school in 1929 and Mr. Severns was a member of the class of '27.

Gifts

SEARCHING for birthday gifts today is not the gay pastime it used to be, if the plaint of a gift seeker is of any moment. Life was one sweet song when one could revel midst the hatpins and backcombs for a whole afternoon returning home at eventide triumphant in the knowledge that one had purchased the most unique, the most conservative, the loudest or the tamest that the market offered. But what gorgeous things they were. Dazzling to behold were the diamonds which adorned the billboard sized hatpin heads, while others were wrought in hammered brass with jade or other stones set in, and still others chose the modest looking signet heads which proclaimed to the mutual observer that one's names began with A. N. S. And words are almost a failure when it comes to the backcombs Again the dazzling diamonds and would be diamonds were the favorites, but rubies weren't so bad if one were a dashing brunette, and those fair ladies of Solomon's court were also "rans" in comparison with the owner of a set (three to be exact) of white combs with gold trimming. At any rate the sword-like hatpins were good protection and the combs were probably the grandmothers of the latter-day barrettes.

Wiener Roasts

THERE'S something about getting down to the business of building a fire in the big outdoors and eating one's weight in wieners that does away with every vestige of dignity and leaves one dancing around in their bones, or in other words they forget to be themselves. Folks who approach the dignified secretary of the gracious manner and gentle but none-the-less firm voice, with something akin to fear would really be astounted to see her smearing mustard on the plebeian hot dog one minute and munching potato chips by the handful with pickles and onions for chasers the next. And who wouldn't rub their optics more than once to see the young woman who tells you that she is grieved to tears (or words just as convincing) that they will have to call later, if they saw her scale the end-gate of a truck like an antelope and come into town in a truck like any hoodlum. But when all's said and done, aren't we all?

Posies

NOW is the time when all flower loving housewives look to the welfare of her plants. Today's plants winter in the basement which is a far cry from the days when fall meant moving all the posies into the house and a winter of moving them from window to stove and vice versa. And the artful stands which received their annual coat of paint in order to carry out the beauty scheme of the room, ranged from wire arrangements with arch effects to the home-grown variety of big at the bottom and little at the top They with the apple a day probably kept the family in a state of health but the custom certainly promoted a good backache when it came to dusting.

CHAPTER 17

A Battle of Wits

FOR one brief minute Thorne continued to stand staring at the spot where he had left the housemaid's unconscious form when he returned to the dressing room. A globe-shaped electric lamp had been tipped so that the direct rays were thrown across the room and far out into the hall, through the portieres blown apart by the wind from the still open window.

Once again Thorne made his round of the first floor. Then suddenly he heard the unmistakable whir of machinery—some one was using the house elevator.

Thorne was waiting at the door of the elevator shaft when the cage reached the first floor. Mrs. Winslow apparently too aghast for speech, stood in the brilliantly lighted elevator.

"Who—who is there?" she quavered, and for answer Thorne stepped forward. "You, Mr. Thorne!"

"Do you wish something downstairs?" he inquired solicitously.

"Only a book I left in the music room. I—I couldn't sleep. Mr. Thorne, you have not answered my question" she reminded him gravely. "Lambert said you had left the house long ago."

"Lambert was mistaken," he responded. "I am waiting to interview your housemaid, Lucy; suppose you take me to her bedroom."

"What do you wish with Lucy at this hour of the night?" she questioned. "Unless it is something really serious I do not feel that she should be disturbed."

"Come with me," Thorne suggested persuasively. "I would like to have you present at our interview. Which is her room?"

Mrs. Winslow studied him in silence; there was an air of determination about Thorne that impressed her.

"Come this way," she directed. Her soft rap on Lucy's bedroom door brought no response. The detective gave the doorknob a dexterous twist and the door swung inward. It was Mrs. Winslow, however, who located the electric switch in the room.

As the light flared up the figure on the bed stirred. Slowly, very slowly the bedclothes were dragged down from Lucy's head and her eyes peeped out at them.

"W-w-w-h-h-at i-i-s- it?"

"Whom were you looking for when you went downstairs 10 minutes or so ago?" Thorne asked.

"Was I downstairs?" she asked, wonderingly. "I remember fallin' an' woke up here." She cast an apprehensive glance at Mrs. Winslow. "I sleep walks, you knew, an' then I dunno where I go, nor why."

"True," acknowledged Mrs. Winslow, and unconsciously her voice betrayed her relief at the trend the interview was taking. "Had I known why you wished to see Lucy, Mr. Thorne," reproachfully, "I could have told you this, and saved scaring Lucy so dreadfully—why the girl is as white as a ghost!"

"I'll get your book," he said; "there is no use your going downstairs again," and giving her no chance for protest, even if she felt so inclined, he brushed by her into the elevator, and slammed both doors behind him, only to have her open the outer one before he had a chance to press the electric button.

"I am going with you," she announced with shrill emphasis, and bounced into the cage. "There will be no necessity for detaining you longer; you look so tired," sweetly commiserating.

The elevator came to a pause before either of its passengers spoke again and in silence they walked to the north entrance of the music room and Thorne turned into it.

"Oh, you needn't bother," protested Mrs. Winslow, but Thorne had already switched on some of the lights and was looking eagerly about for her book. She spied it first on top of a music stand and, picking it up, hurried determinedly toward the front door, with the undoubted intention of ushering him out.

"You saw Miss Chase," she began as he halted, hat in hand and door partly open. "Was your interview satisfactory?"

"Entirely so," he answered, a hint of a smile in his black eyes. "By the way, Mrs. Winslow, has Lucy any little love affair on her hands?"

"Why, eh," she appeared somewhat nonplussed by the question. "One pays so little attention to servants' gossip, but, eh, I believe there is a milkman who is quite smitten with Lucy's charms; she is pretty."

In opening and closing the book in her left hand Mrs. Winslow let it slip, and Thorne caught it before it touched the floor and returned it to her, not however, before he had read its title: Aids to Forensic Medicine and Toxicology. As she murmured her confused thanks Thorne slipped through the front door.

It had seemed to Thorne while he waited for the elevator to descend that first time, that it had taken longer than when he and Mrs. Winslow had come down in it from seeing Lucy on the floor above. Was it that Mrs. Winslow had been in the attic and had come from there in the elevator? But what was Mrs. Winslow, not overly courageous, doing in the attic in the dead of night? And how had Lucy gotten to her bedroom without assistance, in her unconscious condition?

And to think that both the shadow and Lucy had eluded him! It might be that Mrs. Winslow had found Lucy unconscious and had taken her to her room by means of the elevator. Two things, however, were against that theory—how had she revived the girl in the brief time he was racing around the house or gotten her into the elevator and upstairs after his return—the elevator would have betrayed itself by its noisy machinery.

To Be Continued.

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADELE GARRISON

The Arrival of Charles Owen As a Party Guest.

MARY gave an excited little exclamation as Dicky telephoned the direction to "send them up at once, please," and Edith scurried into my bedroom, with her bouquet of mauve and white orchids which she had belittled because she thought it inferior to mine.

"I surmise that the 'party' has begun," I said, smiling at Mary.

"Yes," Dicky responded, taking down the receiver and jiggling the hook. " 'Mrs. Brixton and party are calling.' "

His mimicry of the operator was perfect, and the next instant he gave the Underwood's apartment number and immediately afterward repeated the message again, apparently to Lillian.

Marion's Praise Significant

"Lil will be right over," he said, hanging up the receiver. "I'll stand by the door so that she gets under the wire before the guests arrive."

He had to wait only a few seconds before Lillian appeared, and swept a courtesy to Dicky's admiring comment, "Ata girl, Lil. When you doll up propet, you have everybody else backed off the boards."

I echoed his comment, for Lillian, stately in a trailing gown of mauve and silver, with her modish gray coiffure topped with a silver filagree comb studded with amethysts with the same stones at her ears and throat, and with a bouquet of lavender orchids, was a striking picture. I did not wonder that the next minute when the merry Brixton party bubbled into the room, Marion should have given a little gasp and rushed to her mother while Mrs. Brixton was attempting to sort out her charges and introduce them to the rest of us.

"Oh! Mummy!" I heard Marion whisper: "You are the most stunning thing I've seen in ages. I'm crazy to have the girls meet you! I'm so proud. But where's Dad? I want the girls to see him in his evening clothes. They all fell for him hard in riding togs."

Lillian's face and eyes were shining as her young daughter finished, and I knew that the glow was more on account of Marion's praise of her stepfather than it was of herself. At least, I told myself, whatever other worries might be Lillian's, this particular problem of Marion's jealous dislike of her stepfather, was apparently solved for all time, and would trouble my friend no more.

"Your father will be over in a few minutes," Lillian replied as smoothly as if Harry Underwood were indeed her child's real father, and they had been speaking in this casual way of him, all Marion's life. "But he has to stay over there until the cadets arrive—they're his guests you know. And I believe Mr. Veritzen and his guest, Mr. Cameron, are to come up there and come over with your father. I brought Noel over with me. Ah! Carolyn," she broke off suddenly. "I'm glad to see you survived the ride this morning."

I heard no more. Indeed I had heard the preceding words only because I was so intensely interested in Marion's reactions to her stepfather. I had advanced to meet Mrs. Brixton, who, resplendent in filmy black over crimson was marshaling her charges around her much as she might have gathered a group of her children's playmates in their kindergarten days.

"We can't bother with surnames," Helena said, smiling in the slow fascinating fashion which is hers. "Mrs. Graham, you already know Marion, Caroline and Ronald, and these others, 'from left to right' are Peggy, Emily, Bob, Jack and Jerry."

Even as I gave them a cordial greeting and shook hands with each of them, I had an odd little feeling of triumph because a pet theory of mine, had been vindicated. It is one that has been ridiculed often, but to which I have held stubbornly, that this younger generation of ours, save for the spectacular exceptions which prove the rule, is fully as clean and good as any generation which has preceded it. The faces turned to me as I greeted them, were widely different, some shy, and quiet, some brimming with mischief, one or two with the poise of older people. But all were clean cut, direct of gaze, lovable. There was no 'flaming youth' here, I would have staked much on it. On the other hand there was no one of them who was not high-spirited and fun-loving.

"Marion!" I laid my hand affectionately upon her shoulder. "Take all the girls into Mary's room. They can leave their wraps there. You won't need them to go down to dinner. Ronald, will you take the boys over to the Underwood apartment? Mr. Graham will show you where it is."

It was only when Ronald had led his mates out of the room that I realized the one walking next to Dicky was no schoolboy. In the hurry and crush I had not realized that Charles Owen was to be present at the dinner party after all!

A definite reason for extra value in our

USED CARS

WHEN you buy a used car you should be sure the price is not put above the actual worth of the car, to allow the dealer to recoup an excessive trade-in allowance.

Under the Ford policy there is no incentive for this sort of practice—for the price of the new Ford car is so low, and the value so high, that unreasonable trade-in concessions are hardly possible.

We allow the buyer of a Model A just what his old car is worth—and we offer that used car for sale on the same basis. Model T Fords are reconditioned throughout, and guaranteed. Prices for other makes of cars are based on the service you will get from them. Right now we are offering unusual bargains in unused transportation.

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

IT is funny about school. When a fella has been back in school for a week it seems just like he had never had a vacation. But when I woke up this morning and remembered that it was Saturday and there was not any school it made me feel so good I crowed like a rooster, and then I heard my father say something to my mother downstairs, and I snuck out of bed careful and let Jubilee down by the rope in his teeth, and by the time I had got my britches on I had goose pimples. The mornings are cool like the nights and it won't be so long till the days are chillish like the mornings, and that will be winter. My grandfather said when I was feeding my face this morning that the cold weather would be good for bass and he was going out and get all there is before long. Then my mother told him to go on Saturday so I could go along. I told her after breakfast when I had got her in the kitchen that it isn't much fun to go fishing with him. She said she knew that, but he is a old man and something might happen to him off on the water or in the woods by himself and she wanted me to be there. I said: "Yes, and if you heard what he says when something does happen to him you wouldn't want me to be there." Then she laughed and kissed me, and said I was too wise a little boy to ever talk that way. So I said all right. My mother thinks I am wiser than my grandfather. She is right too. He chews tobacco, and I am too wise to do that. I tried it once. That was how come I got so wise.

Before we went to the pasture we all went down to the dam and shut the water gate so the pond would fill up. So now when it freezes we can go skating. The pond has been empty almost all summer and the bottom was all covered with grass and weeds, and we stayed there till noon watching the water spread out, and some birds flew up out of it hollering. I bet they had some nests there. Then a rat came running to get away and I would of caught it and tamed it, but Jubilee got to it first, and there is no use taming a rat when he is through with it. Then all at once we saw a big snake swimming toarst the dam and the girls screamed, and I got a pole under it and flang it back in deep water, and then we all chunked rocks at it till it sank. I think it was my rock, but everyone claimed it.

Our cows had scattered all over town. The girls went home before we gathered them up and took them to the pasture, so we stayed all the afternoon and the Lost Bag of Tripe chawed our shirts and we caught him and flang him in and his clothes after him, and had a lot of fun. Saturdays in school time are better than Saturdays in vacation. Gimme was at our house when I got home, and she stayed till after supper and my mother made me and Jubilee go home with her.

RICHWOOD GRIDDERS DOWN KENTON, 14-0

Cameron Intercepts Forward Pass To Score from Mid-Field; Losers Weak.

Special To The Star

KENTON, Sept. 20—Kenton High school gridders lost their first game of the season here Friday afternoon when they bowed to the strong Richwood football squad, of 14 to 0.

A record crowd saw the two teams as they battled through three quarters of scoreless play. The visitors did all their scoring in the third quarter.

The first count came when Cameron, Richwood's left half intercepted a pass and ran 50 yards through several players to cross Kenton's goal. The second followed a few seconds after when Cheney, receiving a pretty criss cross pass, ran 12 yards to cross the goal.

Dickason, full back, scored both extra points after the touchdown.

During the remaining three quarters the two teams seemed evenly matched and neither could gain any advantage through the aerial route or by straight football.

Kenton's nearest approach to their opponent's goal line was when they passed the 28 yard line after a series of line bucks and end runs. Richwood's goal ,however, was at no time seriously threatened.

Kenton meets Fremont there next week.

BOARD THINKS SLUMP AT END

No Further Business Decline Likely, Federal Reserve Report Predicts.

MONEY SITUATION GOOD

Member Banks Said To Be in Position To Finance Trade Revival.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20—Government financial authorities today expressed the view the business recession has about reached its low level and no further declines may be expected.

In the monthly report published today, the Federal Reserve board emphasized the continued ease in the money market although it noted a seasonal increase in August of about $60,000,000 in currency in circulation. Even with this rise money in circulation was $300,000,000 under the August average for the last seven years.

The report showed the member Reserve banks, with ample reserves and indebtedness reduced to new low levels, were in an unusually strong position to finance a trade revival when it appears.

President Hoover is still considering the list of prospective candidates for the existing vacancy in the Reserve board. A western commercial banker was believed to be the most likely prospect. Another vacancy is expected next spring with the probable retirement of George R. James, whose term expires then.

Under Governor Eugene Meyer, Jr., who assumed his new duties this week, the board is expected to pursue a more vigorous policy than in the past when it has frequently been spoiled by internal differences on credit questions.

WORKERS CELEBRATE

Depression Era Ends for Thousands at Camden, N. J.

CAMDEN, N. J., Sept. 20—More than 18,000 workers of Camden, today took a day off to celebrate the fact that they have gone back to work and, for them at least, the business depression is now a matter of history.

The workers paraded bands played, business and political leaders made speeches, and broadcasters relayed to the world Camden's spirit of optimism.

Leading in the "back-to-work" movement were the 5,000 men and women recently added to the 13,000 already employed by the R. C. A. Victor plants here, and several thousand who have been taken on by the New York Shipbuilding company and other industrial concerns.

This great increase in employment, it was explained, was "a gesture of confidence in the soundness of American business," and the direct answer to pessimists of business.

SPORTS

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

BY the time this column has reached the stage of publication Coach Dewey Bohyer will have sent his football charges onto the gridiron of Central Catholic High school in Toledo to inaugurate the 1930 football season for both of the teams. For Toledo the game will provide an opportunity to test its possibilities for the coming Toledo city title race. For the locals it may give some idea of about how far Marion will get in the coming N. C. O. chase. Both teams are expecting a hard game, and neither is likely to be disappointed. Toledo holds the edge but Harding will give them a battle from start to finish regardless of the final score. Bohyer has a team that won't quit.

Several players on the Harding eleven this season look like they should put out a brand of football through the season that would earn for them mythical honors in the way of all-league teams. Specifically speaking, Junior Clay and Bob Smith, mainstays of the Presidents' forward wall will look like the class of league.

Neither of them has yet even come close to being conceded the honor but both of them look easily able to take care of themselves in good competition. If they don't it will be a distinct blow to the pennant chances of the local squad. Quarterback Morgan and perhaps one or two others may uncover some smart football before the moleskins are tucked away and the pennant clinched this year.

LOCAL Y. officials have engineered the construction of facilities for the playing of the latest fad in indoor sports, namely, shuffleball. Where the name came from or how the game was invented is not known by the author of this effort. Suffice to say that it has been accepted with great success in many Y's and other places throughout the country and promises to become "the" thing in Marion unless a lot of indoor sport enthusiasts go through a sudden change of mind. The biggest difficulty one finds in attempting to get in a game on the Y court is that everyone else wants to play at the same time. The game requires a minimum of effort. Perhaps that's why it's so popular.

Today the revised playing schedule for the tennis matches of the Shovel-Star court tournament are published and go into effect. For the purpose of completing play in this tournament as soon as possible this schedule will be rigidly adhered to. If a player cannot possibly play at the listed time he is asked to report to this office as soon as possible after this is published. Unless a good reason can be advanced for failure to be on hand for a match a forfeit must be given. Information concerning this schedule may be obtained either from this office or from Bob Wolfinger at the Steam Shovel plant.

COLONELS WIN FLAG IN ASSOCIATION RACE

Hold Margin of Three Games with Two Left on Schedule.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 20 — The surprising Colonels from Louisville, Ky., will represent the American Association in the "little world series," against Rochester of the International league, starting next Wednesday at Rochester.

Even though they lost to Indianapolis yesterday 9 to 7, the Colonels yesterday became 1930 champions of the Association as the second place St. Paul club dropped one to Kansas City, last year's title winner.

Louisville's margin today was three games, with only two games left on its schedule. St. Paul had three but no chance of coming any closer than one-half game of the Colonels.

Toledo trimmed the Senators 8 to 4 yesterday. The Blues won from the Saints 6 to 3, and Minneapolis took a run-fest from Milwaukee 18 to 8.

Morrow Lindsey, 16-year-old Alexandria, La., youth who recently won a municipal tournament, scored two holes in one within a week.

IRISH GIVEN EDGE OVER HARDIN

BOHYER SQUAD MAY UPSET DOPE TO WIN

Presidents in Good Shape for Initial Fray with Toledo.

Confident of their ability to register a victory in the first game of the 1930 season nearly 30 Harding High school grid artists departed early today for the hostile shores of the Maumee river where this afternoon they don moleskins and do battle with irate Irish of Toledo Central High school. Although rated as slight underdogs in the fray the Presidents are expected to give the upstaters a tough battle. It is the first game of the season for both teams.

Coach Bohyer put his charges through a short and snappy signal drill in last night's practice session. Dick Wright is the only man on the squad who is ailing enough to keep him on the sidelines most of the time. Wright may get into the battle for a short time but the injured member will not stand much hard work.

Bob Bush, playing at the fullback post is slated to call the signals for the team although Morgan will line up at the quarter post. The two may alternate the signal calling duties during the game. Sloan and Hunt will complete the backfield combination to start the contest.

Newby and Alspach will play the wings with Clay and Smith starting at the guard posts. Eckenbarger and Houseworth at guards and Eric Williams at the snapperback position will complete the lineup.

First string substitutes for the game today consists of Guthrie at the pivot post with Skinner and Jevas ready to take a guard post. Forest and Red Williams may see duty at the tackles posts while Pickerel and Lindsey are expected to get a chance to see service on the flanks. Second strings backs who should enter the game are Hudson and Cox. Several other members of the squad may be sent into the skirmish to learn something of their ability under fire.

While Toledo is picked to emerge on the long end of the count the locals may easily upset the prediction and finish the winner. Neither team should win by a margin of very many points.

Three N. C. O. Teams on Starting Line

While the Presidents are battling Toledo Central on the Maumee River front field today three other N. C. O. schools will be opening their grid seasons with non-league foes. Shelby is taking on the Medina eleven on the Shelby field and Galion will be in Springfield clashing with the Wildcats of that city. Ashland stole a march on the other teams and played its initial game yesterday with Wellington. The Bucyrus Redmen will open with Crestline today on the Crestline field.

Mansfield will not open its 1930 season until Sept. 27 when Danville is met on the Stadium grounds.

Of the N. C. O. foemen for today, it is expected that only one will present a lineup strong enough to offer very serious competition to the league members. Shelby figures to run up a comfortable lead against Medina while Crestline is not given much chance against Bucyrus. Either may upset the dope, Galion will be lucky to scrape through its initial start without being badly battered and perhaps beaten. Springfield is rated pretty tough but Galion may be able to get around the obstacle.

Secord Scores on Pass in First Quarter; Richwood Beats Kenton.

Jumping into a six point lead in the early part of the opening quarter when Secord, right end snatched a pass and scampered over the goal for the only score of the game, LaRue High school yesterday tamed a fighting Plain City eleven and won the initial game of the year for the Marion county team. The teams battled on fairly even terms for the remaining three quarters of play.

In the only other high school game of this district reported to The Star, Richwood High triumphed over the supposedly stronger Kenton team 14 to 0. Richwood outplayed the Kenton team through most of the game.

ALMOST A HABIT

By The Associated Press

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 20 —For the third time in as many years the final round of the American professional lawn tennis championship found Vincent Richards of New York pitted against Karel Kozeluh, Czechoslovakian wizard, today. Richards won in 1928 and Kozeluh last year.

In a Philadelphia-Chicago Cubs game won by the Cubs 5-4, English and Cuyler for Chicago and Whitney and O'Doul for the Phillies scored all the runs.

Pat Caraway, left handed pitcher, is the only White Sox rookie this year who has come up to spring expectations.

Clint Riebeth, Minnesota half back star, is expected to shine even brighter this season due to his liking of Fritz Crisler, new coach.

PHILLIES MAY GIVE CARDS HARD BATTLE TO HOLD TOP RUNG

Second Division Clubs in Position To Wreck Pennant Hopes.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Second division clubs of the National league have some fine opportunities ahead for upsetting the apple carts of the three contenders for the championship.

The Phillies, doomed to finish in the cellar, already have caused a lot of trouble for Chicago's Cubs and yesterday they gave the league leading St. Louis Cardinals a great run for their money before going down 7 to 3. They meet the Cards four more times in the next few days then have one crack at Brooklyn.

The three leading teams stand in this order:

Club	W.	L.	Pct.	G. B.	T.	P.
St. Louis	86	60	.589	—		8
Brooklyn	84	63	.571	2½		7
Chicago	84	63	.571	2½		7

Rally To Win

A five run rally in the seventh won for the league leaders and enabled them to gain a half-game on the idle Robins, but it did not appear until Chuck Klein had given them a scare by his 37th and 38th home runs of the year to send the Phillies off ahead. Fidgety Phil Collins held the Cards under control until the seventh when two doubles, two singles and two hit batsmen brought them five runs and settled the game.

The Cubs had a call before they gained a tie with Brooklyn. Off to a four run lead against Tom Zachary in the first two innings, they allowed the Braves to tie the score. Gabby Hartnett doubled and George Kelly's single produced the winning run in the ninth.

Giants Win Easily

The New York Giants had an easy triumph over Cincinnati, winning 7 to 0 behind Bill Walkers two hit pitching.

The newly crowned American League champions, the Philadelphia Athletics, were idle. They spent the day watching a slugging match between the New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox. The Yanks won by an 18 to 9 score, making 21 hits, including Lou Gehrig's 40th homer of the season.

Washington's Senators clinched second place in the standing as they defeated the Detroit Tigers 8 to 4.

The Cleveland Indians got an early start against the Boston Red Sox and won the other game on the day's schedule 7 to 5.

Purdue Named As Team To Beat For Big Ten Title

By International News Service

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Sept. 20—Take an undefeated Big Ten championship football team, subtract a coach, two All-American backs and an all-western lineman; add a new young coach, a couple of sensational youngsters and a wealth of promising sophomore material, stir well with plenty of fighting spirit—and the result will be the Purdue team of 1930.

And what a team it's going to be, too. Last year we figured Purdue to be the dark-horse of the championship race. This season it stands out almost like the Gallant Fox of the Big Ten—barring, of course, the unexpected.

Kizer Steps In

They didn't waste much time around here bemoaning the loss of Pest Welch, Glenn Harmeson, Elmer Sleight, Eb Caraway or even Coach Jimmy Phelan. Noble Kizer, stepping in as head coach after five years as Jimmy's assistant, went right to work developing replacements for this brilliant array of graduates.

Two replacements warmed the bench last season only because there were chaps like Harmeson and Welch on the squad. They are Jim Purvis and Lew Pope, who with Alex Yunevich and Jack White will form the 1930 edition of the "four riveters."

Purvis weighs 175 pounds. Pope is 10 pounds heavier. Both can run, pass, kick or do anything else that is demanded of a halfback.

The other two members of the regular backfield won their spurs last year. Alex Yunevich wasn't far from being the best fullback in the conference, while Jack White made a name for himself as a quarterback.

This quartet of juniors aren't the only backfield stars around the Purdue camp. There are at least a dozen of better than average ability. Some of the lads who rate as second and third string backs here would be shining stars at other schools.

1930 Grid Rule Explanations

3. A touchback is made when a free ball or a ball legally in possession of a player guarding his own goal becomes dead, any part of it being on, above or behind the goal line, provided the impetus sending it across the line was given by a defensive player.

4. Tripping is obstructing an opponent below the knees with the hand or with that part of the obstructing player's leg which is below the knee.

5. A try for point after touchdown may be made by executing a single play from scrimmage. It may be by drop kick, place kick or by carrying the ball across.

ANSWERS MONDAY

IT'S BOBBY AGAIN

Against a field of about 185 of the leading amateur golfers of the country the Atlanta wizard will tee off on Monday in his attempt to annex the fourth major golf title for the year.

If he succeeds in the attempt he will be the first golfer in the history of the game to have accomplished such a feat. Jones is an overwhelming pretourney favorite to turn the trick.

WEEK-END MATCHES OF TENNIS TOURNEY; NEW SKED MONDAY

No Play Set for Week Days on Account of Early Darkness.

In an effort to complete the play in the Shovel-Star tennis tournament in as short a time as possible and still not work a hardship on any of the contestants the entire playing schedule for the remaining matches has been revised. The matches which have appeared in previous issues of The Star for play today will not affect the newly constructed schedule. The latest revised list will become effective Sunday.

This schedule has been arranged to allow the tournament to be concluded on Oct. 12. No matches, with one exception, are set for any of the week days because of early darkness lessening chances of completion of the play. The following schedule will be rigidly adhered to in order to relieve any necessity of rescheduling matches.

The matches set for today include one doubles and two singles. Penry and Yazel will play Smith and Bartram at 5 p. m. on court No. 1. White will clash with Cunningham at the same time on No. 2 and Long will meet Stair on No. 3 at the same hour.

The matches for Sunday follow:

SUNDAY, 9 A. M.

Penry vs. Lindsey, No. 1. Yazel vs. winner of White-Cunningham match, No. 2. Wolfinger vs. Thompson, No. 3.

SUNDAY, 2 P. M.

Lindsey-Lindsey vs. Herr-Gill. Gilmore-Long vs. Siefert-Cunningham. Winner of Bray-Aiken vs Ebert-Melvin match and winner of Virden-Snyder and Stair-Cheney match.

As soon as the results of the Saturday and Sunday matches are tabulated the pairings for the remaining matches will be published. The complete schedule will be in either the Monday or Tuesday issue of The Star.

Judge Ewald and Wife Released Under Bond

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 20— George F. Ewald, a former city magistrate and his wife, Mrs. Bertha E. Ewald, were at liberty under $2,500 bail today after pleading not guilty to indictments charging them with buying Ewald his office.

Martin J. Healy, Tammany leader in the nineteenth district, who was charged with receiving the $10,000 which Ewald is accused of paying, and Thomas T. Tommaney, described as a go-between in another indictment, will answer the charges against them next Monday.

The indictments were returned by a special grand jury ordered by Governor Roosevelt after a regular grand jury had failed to act. The charge against them is punishable by two years' imprisonment and a fine of $3,000.

The jury also is expected to delve into the disappearance of Supreme Court Justice Force Crater, for whom a wide search is under way.

Equality you know, means an equality with those you think below as well as those above.

WHEAT PRICES GO DOWNWARD

Market Rallies at Close After Hitting New Bottom for Season.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 20—Enlarged selling pressure during the final hour of trading carried wheat and rye down today to the lowest price level reached yet this season. The new bottom-record quotations were reached by March and May deliveries of wheat and by December and May deliveries of rye. Temporarily all deliveries of wheat went below yesterday's finish, but the market rallied against just before the close.

The sole apparent fresh development to account for late weakness of wheat values was a possible bearish construction of a reminder from President Bunnell of the board of trade in a telegram to Secretary of Agriculture Hyde that the board is a recognized world market and that hedges protecting grain in all positions are customarily placed here.

Wheat closed nervous at the same as yesterday's finish to ½c lower. Corn closed unchanged to ⅛ off, oats ⅛@1c up, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 7 cents.

Friends of higher prices for wheat laid stress today on assertions that top estimates of Russia's exportable surplus of wheat are but 48,000,000 bushels and that even if this total is relied on as accurate, the market effect has already been discounted in full. It was also contended hte recent large movement of wheat in Canada is the forerunner of a decidedly smaller movement later. In this out today's arrivals of wheat at connection the fact was pointed Winnipeg were 1,656 cars compared with 2,324 cars at this time last week. Oats today paralleled changes of wheat and corn, provisions were easy in the absence of active demand

Graphic Story of Andree Arctic Tragedy Revealed in Pages of Explorer's Diary

33-Year-Old Record Tells of Battle for Life in Frozen North.

Shows That Almost from Start Misfortune Pursued Expedition.

By The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM, Sept 20—Frozen faded pages so fragile now after 33 years that to turn them has been almost to destroy them, have told the story of the last days of August Salamon Andree, Swedish explorer and his two companions, who in 1897 tried to fly over the north pole in a balloon.

The pages are those of M Andree's diary, part of which he wrapped in an old jersey and placed next to his body before he lay down to die on the ice

Thus preserved they were found by Dr. Gunnar Horn and others of the Norwegian Arctic expedition last month with Andree's remains and other relics of the balloon expedition

Some phase of the disaster which overtook Andree and his two companions the pages do not make clear, and they may remain forever a mystery, but a remarkably clear and full account is given of part of the balloon voyage

The diary records the start of the balloon from Danes Island, Spitzbergen, on July 11, 1897, with favorable auspices for a successful flight over the North Pole toward land on the opposite hemisphere, where they hoped to come down safely, much as did the dirigible Norge nearly 30 years later.

Misfortune from Start

But almost from the start misfortune pursued them The balloon's gas bag leaked, and the balloon and its appurtenances became weighted down with ice and frost It lost its buoyancy and at times bumped along the ice at 7 p m On the third day out there was a fire in the gondola and although it was extinguished the explorers landed, presumably because of exhaustion.

The next week, from July 14 to July 21, was spent encamped on the ice while a sledge journey back toward land was organized, the explorers who besides Andree were Nils Strindberg and Knut Frankel, hoping to reach Franz Josef land, now known at Fridtjof Nansen land

It is not just clear why they should have headed toward this little known and uninhabited region instead of toward Spitbergen where they had food depots Their march was eastward.

The doomed men struggled on day after day, crossing ice crevasses, and traversing by means of a small canvass boat deep pools of fresh water which they found on the ice between them and their goal. Each of the three men had their experience with falling into these pools, but all kept up their spirits, laughing and joking Frankel and Strindberg developed diarrhoea, and both suffered from bruised feet.

The irony of that long march did not at first appear, but on Aug 4, they knew from observation as their position that while traveling east, the ice was drifting westward at an even greater rate

Their position Aug 4 was about 60 miles west of their starting point

Head for Seven Islands

After some consideration they turned here and began a belated journey toward Seven Islands, off Spitzbergen

Their own food was running out. They were on shortened rations and the outlook was pretty glum. They killed some polar bears, which Andree calls "wandering meat shops of the Arctic," and with each successive kill the prospects of the party brightened. There were days even no bears appeared and the men went hungry.

During all this travel Andree's interests as a scientist never flagged Occasionally on the ice hummocks he would pick off specks of clay and bits of moss, which the ice had picked up somewhere in the course of its wandering in the arctic He saved some twenty of them, carrying them along Meanwhile they became much more skillful in obtaining food and the diary mentions that Frankel became adept at preparing a savory concoction known as a "blood pancake" which served them for bread. Strindberg's specialty was seaweed.

With arrival in the shallower waters south of Spitzbergen the drift changed and Andree realized it would be impossible to reach Seven Islands. Between Sept. 12 and 17 the ice on which they located drifted 100 kilometers in an east-southeast direction and the cold became more and more intense.

Sight First Land

Their decision then was to spend the winter on a suitable "ice float" and they set to work building what they described as an "ecot." On Sept. 17 they sighted Hvitvoen, which they called "New Iceland." It was the first land they had seen since July 11. The next day they killed their first seal, and the next day three more and on Sept. 20 a bear. Andree estimated that as a result of their good fortune there would be food to last until the next April

They constructed and moved into a little ice cabin which they called "the home." At this point a sudden and irreparable disaster overtook them. The ice floe on which they had chosen to live cracked up and separated their stores and supplies on small chunks of ice.

The diary comes to a sudden end just here with the comment by Andree: "With such companions everything will go on all right in almost any circumstance."

There is no clue to the end of the men, which of them died first and what brought death on. There is, in solution of this, only the fact of discovery of their remains, Strindberg's and Frankel's laid out as if in a sort of interment, and Andree's own body up against the side of a mountain, as he lay down there knowing it was where he would die.

POLICE AFTER GUNMEN GANG

Hunt Under Way After Federal Agents Are Ambushed and One Slain.

By The Associated Press

ELIZABETH, N. J., Sept. 20—Federal, state and local authorities sought today to round up a gang of gunmen who ambushed a raiding party of federal dry agents in a brewery and killed one of the agents.

John G. Fienello, 44 years old, of Philadelphia, was shot and instantly killed yesterday when he walked into the boiler room of the Rising Sun brewery where a gang of 11 gunmen had lined up and disarmed his companions. The raiding party of five federal men came from Philadelphia.

Leaving one of their number at the entrance as a guard, the agents entered the brewery. They arrested the engineer and two stokers. Robert Young, supervisor of breweries and three agents remained with the prisoners while Fienello went through the plant seeking others.

At that point the gunmen rushed into the boilerroom with drawn guns covering the agents whom they disarmed.

Fienello, unaware of the attack walked into the room.

"There's Fienello—let him have it," one of the gunmen yelled and stepped behind Young to use his body as a shield.

Fienello attempted to fire but his gun jammed. The man behind Young opened fire with two guns, killing the agent instantly.

City and state police were hurried to the brewery with their tear gas bombs and riot guns fearing the attackers might entrench themselves in the place, but they had fled after disarming the agent guarding the entrance.

Later Detective George Craig was slightly wounded in the neck by a bullet fired through a window while he was searching the place. No one was found in the place.

This Is Plea of Mayor Jones to Engineers After Residents Kick.

There will be less tooting of locomotive whistles in Marion in the night season hereafter if a letter of Mayor L. Don Jones to superintendents of four railroads running lines through this city is productive of results.

The letter asking the superintendents to instruct their men to do as little tooting as possible in order to make Marion a more quiet and peaceful city followed a number of complaints from citizens to Mayor Jones.

It also follows a campaign against bellings and noisy automobiles begun through the police department by Mayor Jones to reduce offensive noises in the city at night.

Letters were sent to Supt. T. J. Hayes of the Big Four railroad at Bellefontaine; Supt. C. F. Lingenfelter of the Pennsylvania railroad at Toledo; Supt. W. W. Houston of the C. & O. railroad at Columbus; and Supt. H. E. Wilson of the Erie railroad at Marion.
